

49% of kids who do not know their ABCs at the start of kindergarten come from:*

A) Lower income families

B) Middle income families

C) Upper income families

The answer is B and C. Surprised?

Most people are. But a child being unprepared for kindergarten is an equal-opportunity problem. And being unprepared can affect a child socially, emotionally and intellectually. Fortunately, Tennessee now has an opportunity to help children begin kindergarten with the readiness skills necessary to succeed – by moving toward a pre-K program that is voluntary and open to all families who wish their children to be enrolled.
